

THE DUGWAY DISPATCH

U.S. ARMY DUGWAY PROVING GROUND

COMMAND CORNER

Bugle calls are musical signals that announce scheduled and certain non-scheduled events on an Army installation. Bugle calls, including Reveille and Retreat are normal procedures for many Army installations. Raising and lowering the flag each day and rendering honors to the flag and our Nation is an integral part of the Army culture and profession. Here at U.S. Army Dugway Proving Ground, the Senior Commander, COL Kirschner and I, felt it is important to reestablish this long-standing Army tradition.

Regarded as an official ceremony by regulation, Bugle calls will require courtesies to be rendered by individuals, both military and civilians. Soldiers and civilians who are outdoors during bugle calls are expected to halt all activities and render honors to the flag until the music ceases.

Reveille will be played every day at 6:30 a.m., (0630 hours), and is approximately 30 seconds long. Traditionally, it serves as a signal to troops to awaken for morning roll call. It is used to accompany the raising of the National Colors, the American Flag.

Retreat will be played every day at 5:00 p.m., (1700 hours). Traditionally it signals the end of the official day. I know many of you are probably wondering why Retreat is played at 5:00 p.m., versus 5:30 p.m., at the end of our official duty day on Dugway Proving Ground. Simply put, this affords everyone on DPG the opportunity to render the proper courtesy in a safe and efficient manner in English Village and Ditto. Retreat will be directly followed by To The Color, which renders honors to the nation, and commands all the same courtesies as the National Anthem. Together, the two calls are approximately one minute long and are used to accompany the lowering of the American flag.

Taps, the last bugle call of the day, will be played each evening at 10:00 p.m., (2200 hours). Traditionally it signals that all unauthorized lights are to be extinguished. This is the last call of the day. The call is also sounded at the completion of a military funeral ceremony. Taps is approximately one minute long.

A Military flag detail will raise the flag at the Dugway Proving Ground Garrison Headquarters in English Village during Reveille, and will lower the flag during Retreat and To The Color. The flag will remain raised on weekends, federal holidays, military training holidays, and curtailed operations.

Military and civilian personnel are expected to follow the guidelines outlined in Army Regulation 600-25 for courtesies to be rendered during Reveille, Retreat, and To The Color. See the table on page 2 for exact guidelines.

Bugle calls

Team Dugway, never forget that we are trusted Army professionals. We are honorable servants of the Nation, Army experts, and faithful stewards of the people, other resources, and profession entrusted to our care.

NEW SEATBELT COVERS REMIND DUGWAY TO BUCKLE UP

By Bonnie Robinson

Buckle up Dugway, every trip, every time.

Making this easy to remember are new florescent-yellow seatbelt covers, which are being placed in Dugway government vehicles this week.

"Data provided by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration validates that the use of seat belts will reduce serious crash-related injuries and deaths by about half," said Philip Krippner, chief, Dugway Safety Office.

The loss of employee lives is a call for action that the U.S. Army's Test & Evaluation Command has ratified according to an operational order from the ATEC headquarters earlier this month.

Motor vehicle crashes are the number one reason federal employees are involved in accidents according to several Federal studies.

The guidance came from the Safety and Occupational Health Counsel Jan. 21 as a best business policy, which Maj. Gen. Daniel Karbler, ATEC's commander, was quick to endorse and ensure his test centers, the Army's sole independent test and evaluation enterprise, saves lives.

The new seatbelt covers, which attach with Velcro, will slip over the typical dark or neutral colored belts of government vehicles. This makes them easy to install and noticeable if a driver is not buckled up.

The bright color easily reminds drivers that they are responsible for their riders' safety while operating a government vehicle. Occupational health statistics overwhelmingly state that deaths are preventable if seatbelts are used consistently.

ATEC's adoption shows its commitment to its employees' safety.

It appears it will be an accepted practice by all government agencies.

It also makes it easier for police officers and access control guards to enforce the use of seat belts, which can be difficult from a distance.

"Maj. Gen. Karbler's high-visible seatbelt cover initiative demonstrates a personal commitment in protecting the team throughout the enterprise," Krippner said. "These Hi-Vis covers will be a daily reminder of our personal commitment to safety."

Occupational health statistics overwhelmingly state that deaths are preventable if seatbelts are used consistently.

"This is a great idea and they are easy to attach," said Don Smith, Dugway garrison manager. "I once had a trooper tell me that he had never had to unbuckle a dead man."

DUGWAY CELEBRATES BLACK HISTORY MONTH

On Thursday, February 18, Team Dugway celebrated Black History Month during a well attended event at the Community Club. Darrell Grey, as Master of Ceremony, opened the observance before introducing the featured speaker, Command Sergeant Major Montonya Boozier

Following this years theme: Hallowed Grounds: Sites of African American Memories, CSM Boozier presented a riveting and thought provoking overview spanning nearly 200 years of African American contributions to the fabric of American history. Highlighted, was the incredible story of Fannie Lou Hamer and her fight to obtain and exercise her right to vote. Her struggle led directly to the passage of the 1964 Voting Rights Act.

Following CSM Boozier, Colonel Sean Kirschner, Commander of Dugway Proving Ground, spoke briefly of the history of African Americans who have served in the military.

Immediately following, attendees were treated to a delicious spread of tasting items which included samples of fried chicken, catfish, macaroni and cheese, biscuits, corn bread, corn on the cob, collard greens and hush-puppies, expertly prepared by the staff of the Community Club.

COMMAND CYBER READINESS INSPECTION

An inspection team from the Defense Information Systems Agency will conduct a Command Cyber Readiness Inspection (CCRI) of Dugway Proving Ground from May 16 to May 20, 2016. The main focus of the inspection will be on the Nonsecure Internet Protocol Router Network (NIPRNet), and the Secret Internet Protocol Router Network (SIPRNet), and supporting traditional security practices. The agency will inspect work centers, looking for adherence to standards and will also check Dugway's technical and information systems for vulnerabilities. In addition, DISA will inspect technical and operational adherence to the Department of Defense standard practices and policies, which includes secure and non-secure cyber security network compliance and physical security practices.

Leaders at all levels within their organizations are asked to check and re-check that these standards are being adhered to - down to the individual user

- to ensure awareness and compliance with cyber security measures.

The following are some tips network users can follow to ensure compliance success:

- when using Government computer systems.
- Ensure government computers are turned on and connected to the network.
- At the conclusion of the business day, log

SIPR uptime period on Thursdays and ensure each system stays connected for at least 4 hours.

- Do not pass any information, especially critical operational traffic, over unclassified communications, such as phone, email, Facebook, etc.
- Protect your SIPR token and Common Access Card. Keep them within your arms' reach at all times. Lock your workstation - remove your CAC and SIPR token every time you step away. Secure all SIPR drop lockboxes and hard drives prior to leaving computers unattended.
- Do not plug unauthorized electronic devices, like thumb drives, hard drives, portable media players or cell phones into a government NIPRNet or SIPRNet computer system unless you have an approved exemption letter.

Cyber security is everyone's responsibility. For Dugway to be successful during this inspection, all network users must be knowledgeable and adhere to traditional physical security, information security and information assurance policies.

Cyber security

- Read your Acceptable Use Policy. As users of the Army network, you sign an AUP when first being allowed access to any Army network. It contains all the basics you need to know to keep you compliant

- computers off the NIPRNet system and reboot at the beginning of the next duty day to ensure security patch compliance.
- Power on and log in to SIPR machines at least weekly. The NEC recommends that each organization establish a

- Always digitally sign messages with hyperlinks and attachments.
- Be cautious of phishing attempts when receiving emails with links and attachments that are not digitally signed.

Traditional security

- Know who your security manager, information management officer and/or information systems security officer are and how to contact them. The inspection team will quiz random personnel during facility visits.
- Verify security clearances and escort unauthorized personnel.
- Properly safeguard classified systems to include proper completion of applicable Standard Form 700 (security container information), SF 701 (activity security checklist) and SF 702 (security container check sheet).
- Use proper document cover sheets and face your monitors away from your doors and unshaded windows to eliminate viewing by unauthorized personnel. Keep your SIPR monitor a secret; not visible from a common space.

- Properly label disc media and have proper classification markings, such as a Department of Defense Form 2056 (telephone monitoring notification decal) on communications equipment like computers, monitors, phones, etc., in a mixed environment.
- Don't bring in devices with wireless capability or cameras, including mobile phones in any area with classified systems present.
- Lock up rooms and areas containing active communications equipment, such as switches and routers.

The NEC sincerely appreciates the support, flexibility and hard work of everyone involved in preparing for this post-wide inspection. Your vigilance, displayed all year long, will help shut the door to our adversaries.

If you have questions or concerns about the CCRI, contact your organization's security manager or the NEC Information Systems Security Officer at 435-831-2192.
